*Congo: A small-scale rebel attack on Stanleyville was repulsed by Congo army (ANC) troops yesterday, but new forays by the rebels may be in the offing.

Much of the fighting took place in the immediate vicinity of the US Consulate. Damage was slight, however. The airport apparently remains in friendly hands, although some shooting was reported there.

Despite previous reports of planned disturbances by dissidents within the city, no such outbreaks have yet occurred. [REDACTED]

25X1

[REDACTED] The ANC commander says he plans to carry the attack to the rebels today.

The situation remains tense in Bukavu and a partial evacuation is in process. Large numbers of rebels are reported to the south, but ANC troops there, and to the west, are presently holding their positions.

The ANC now claims to be in control in the area of the recent rebel outbreak to the north of Leopoldville. [REDACTED]

Jordan: [King Husayn feels he must obtain additional arms, and says he will have to accept Soviet equipment if he cannot get what he wants from the US.]

[The effort to strengthen Jordan's forces is part of an overall Arab military build-up which the Arab leaders agreed on in Cairo last January. The Arabs believe this build-up is a necessary corollary to their long-term plans to frustrate Israel's Jordan River diversion project. They also have set up a United Arab Command which is to allocate funds for the build-up.]

25X1

[The King has asked the US to provide ground and air equipment costing about $70 million. He places particular emphasis on his request for 20 F-104G jet fighters.]

NOTES

Thailand: [Coup rumors in Bangkok have subsided, but the military and police alert continues. Reports of coup plots with various principals caused Deputy Premier Praphat Charusathien, who is probably the regime's most powerful figure, to cut short a European tour and return to Thailand on 3 August. Lt. General Krit Siwara, the only ranking officer in the Bangkok area with troops directly under him, seems to support Prime Minister Thanom's government. Some long-planned cabinet changes may be imminent, however.]

25X1

South Korea: [Student leaders are organizing an antigovernment campaign to begin when the Korean universities reopen, probably later this month. They plan to resume public demonstrations, which led to the closing of the schools and imposition of martial law in Seoul last June, and to call on the government to release arrested students and end negotiations for the normalization of relations with Japan.]

[] if the students return to the streets the government probably will reimpose martial law.]
